

The political movement in favor of electing General Grant as the next President has met with wonderful success. The Republicans of all shades accept the proposition as the best if not only mode of securing their desired ends. That is the compromise to be offered to the eleven Southern States. The Republicans are to have the Presidency for the next term, and the South may have restoration and representation.

West Point, June 2.—The funeral services of Gen. Scott were most impressive. There were present many distinguished persons from all sections of the country, and State and municipal officers. The Government was also represented. Respect was paid to the memory of the deceased in nearly all of the Eastern cities.

Two female monomaniacs, recently got married. Lucy Slater and a Miss Perry, of Abington, Mass. They ran off—Lucy assumed the name of Jas. Slater, and became the husband of his or her enamored lover.

A young Prussian officer lately died whose heart was on his right side, with the liver on the left, and other internal organs correspondingly reversed. He had always enjoyed good health, and died of typhus fever.

On two plantations, in the District, one hundred and ten acres of cotton have been ploughed up, and corn planted instead. So that, if we have less cotton, we shall have more bread.

[Petersen Courier.]

We have it from good authority, that so soon as Congress adjourns, Gov. Orr will call the Legislature together, so that our laws may be made to conform to the action of Congress.

Governor Orr, of South Carolina and other prominent citizens of Charleston, propose the common school system for colored children in that city.

New Orleans, June 2.—The levee at Alexandria has given way and the town is flooded. The entire Red River country is devastated.

Almost three thousand Mormons are expected in New York, from Europe. Most of them are from England.
